others, proposed jury instructions on all substantive issues and on any other points not covered by the court's standard instructions, which may be found in the Ninth Circuit free of argument, and shall be organized in logical fashion so as to aid juror comprehension.

 7 summaries and diagrams and other similar documentary materials to be used at the trial,
 8 together with a complete list of all such exhibits. Voluminous exhibits shall be redacted by 9 elimination of irrelevant portions or use of summaries. FRE 1006. Each item shall be 10 premarked using the form of mark attached; generally, exhibits of a plaintiff with numbers,

 12 exhibits shall be designated to indicate the party on whose behalf the exhibit is offered.

13 No exhibits, including damage exhibits, which have not been disclosed as required by this 14 paragraph will be received at trial. Counsel shall retain copies of their respective exhibits
 15 until the conclusion of all proceedings, including appeals and other post-trial proceedings.

16 e. Witnesses. Each party shall serve all others and file a statement identifying all persons who

25 IT IS SO ORDERED.

26
 27 Vaughn R Walker
 28 United States District Chief Judge

GUIDELINES FOR THE CONDUCT OF TRIALS

For Trials before the Honorable Vaughn R Walker

These guidelines are provided to trial counsel to facilitate the fair and efficient conduct of trials in this court and should be accepted in that spirit.

1. Pretrial Submissions and Witness Scheduling.

Each party's pretrial statement must identify all witnesses the party expects to call and the exhibits intended to be offered. At least 24 hours beforehand, the party should advise all other parties of the order in which witnesses are expected to be called and the exhibits to be offered by each witness.

2. Opening Statements/Closing Arguments.

An opening statement is simply an objective summary of what counsel expects the evidence to show. No argument or discussion of the law is permissible. Opening statements are limited to fifteen minutes and closing arguments to thirty minutes unless the court expressly grants leave to exceed these limits. Only one lawyer may open or close for a party and to ensure the credibility of opening statements, the lawyer who makes the opening statement must also make the closing argument.

3. Questioning Witnesses.

- a. Conduct the examination from the lectern. Ask permission to approach the witness when necessary and return to the lectern as soon practicable. Treat witnesses with courtesy and respect; do not become familiar.
- b. Ask brief, direct and simply stated questions. Cover one point at a time. Leading questions may be used for background or routine matters. Direct examination is not a deposition and should not be conducted like one. Go directly to the point of the witness's testimony.
- c. Cross-examination similarly should consist of brief, simple and clearly stated questions.
- d. Only one lawyer for each party may examine any one witness. This includes any objections made during course of trial.
- e. Once a witness has been sworn, no lawyer may discuss that witness's testimony with the witness until the witness has completed testimony and been excused.

4. Using Depositions

- a. The deposition of an adverse party may be used for any purpose. Simply identify the deposition and page and line numbers and read the relevant portion. Opposing counsel may then ask to read such additional testimony as is necessary to complete the context, but this request should be made immediately to maintain context. An unduly belated request may be denied as untimely.

United States District Court
For the Northern District of California

- 1       b. The deposition of a witness not a party may be used for impeachment or if the 2       witness has been shown to be unavailable. For impeachment, allow the witness to 3       read the designated portion first, ask simply whether the witness gave that testimony,
4       and then read it. Opposing counsel may immediately read additional testimony
5       necessary to complete the context.
6
7       c. A deposition may also be used to refresh a witness's recollection by showing the 8       relevant part of the deposition to the witness. After showing the witness the prior 9       testimony, ask whether the deposition refreshes recollection. If the answer is 10      affirmative, ask what the witness now recalls. Do not ask the witness to read from 11      the deposition. If the witness says something along the lines of "It says here * * *," be 12      sure to pin down the witness' present recollection. If the witness professes no present 13      recollection, pin down what was the witness' prior testimony.
14
15      d. NOTE: It is the responsibility of counsel anticipating use of a deposition at trial to 16      check in advance of trial that the transcript has been made available to the witness for 17      signature and that the original is delivered to the court by the first day of trial.

5. Objections

- 1       a. To make an objection, rise, say "objection" and briefly state the legal ground (e.g
2       "hearsay," "privilege," "irrelevant").
3
4       b. Do not make a speech or argument, or summarize evidence, or suggest the answer to 5       the witness.
6
7       c. Where an evidentiary problem is anticipated, bring it to the court's attention in 8       advance to avoid interrupting the orderly process of trial.

6. Exhibits

- 1       a. All exhibits must be marked before the trial starts, using the form of label following 2       these guidelines. Copies must be provided to opposing counsel and the court before 3       trial.
4
5       b. When offering an exhibit, follow this procedure to the extent applicable (unless 6       foundation has been stipulated):
7
8       Request permission to approach the witness;
9
10      Show the witness the document and say: "I show you [a letter] dated ___, premarked 11      Exhibit ___. Can you identify that document?"
12
13      Identification having been made, make your offer as follows: "I offer Exhibit ___.
14
15      NOTE: In some circumstances, of course, additional questions may be necessary to 16      lay the foundation, but be sure you have laid your foundation before offering the 17      exhibit.
18
19       c. It is the responsibility of counsel to see that all exhibits to be included in the record
20      are formally offered and ruled on, and that all of the court's copies of exhibits are in 21      the hands of the clerk. Take nothing for granted.

7. Interrogatories and Requests for Admission

United States District Court
For the Northern District of California

1 Counsel wishing to place into the record an interrogatory answer or response to request for 2 admission should prepare a copy of the particular interrogatory or request and 3 accompanying response, mark it as an exhibit and offer it. Pleadings and papers in the court file are not a part of the trial record unless offered as an exhibit and received into evidence.

4 8. Conduct of Trial

5 a. The court expects counsel and the witnesses to be present and ready to proceed 6 promptly at the appointed hour – normally starting at 8:30 am the first day of trial.
A witness on the stand when a recess is taken should be back on the stand when the recess ends.

7 b. Bench conferences should be minimized. Raise anticipated problems at the start or 8 end of the trial day or during a recess.

9 c. Have a sufficient number of witnesses available in court to testify so as not run out of witnesses. Running out of witnesses may be taken by the court as resting your case.

10 d. Trials normally are conducted 8:30 am to 4:00 pm Mondays through Fridays with 11 approximately a one-hour luncheon break. Due to law and motion hearing on 12 Thursdays, the trial schedule on that day generally runs from 8:30 am to 12:30 pm. Do not, however, assume that the court will recess on any of those days unless prior arrangements have been made with the court.

13 e. Counsel are expected to cooperate with each other in the scheduling and production 14 of witnesses. Witnesses may be taken out of order if necessary. Every effort should 15 be made to avoid calling a witness twice (as an adverse witness and later as a party's witness).

16 9. Jury Trial

17 a. When trial is to a jury, counsel should present the case so that the jury can follow it.
Witnesses should be instructed to speak clearly and in plain language. When 18 documents play an important part, a means of displaying the documents to the jury is crucial to juror comprehension. Take advantage of the court's evidence presentation facilities. If one party augments these facilities, that party must offer the use of the 19 augmented facilities to all other parties.

20 b. Jury instructions should be submitted at the pretrial conference but may be supplemented during the trial. Only those dealing with the particular issues in the 21 case need be presented. Instructions are to be drafted specifically to take into account the facts and issues of the particular case, and in plain language; do not submit copies 22 from form books. Do not submit argumentative or formula instructions.

23 c. Do not offer a stipulation in the presence of the jury unless agreement has previously 24 been reached. Preferably such stipulations should be in writing.

25 d. In final argument, do not express personal opinions, vouch for your client or ask jurors to place themselves in the position of a party, or encourage speculation as to 26 possible consequences of the litigation beyond the evidence presented.

27 e. Normally, the court will instruct the jury before closing argument. Accordingly, there 28 will be little need to explain the law in the closing argument although, of course, argument should focus on how the facts as proved or not fit the legal requirements.

10. General Decorum

- 3 a. Colloquy between counsel on the record is not permitted -- all remarks are to be 4 addressed to the court.
- 5 b. Vigorous advocacy does not preclude courtesy to opposing counsel and witnesses
6 and respect for the court. Undue familiarity with witnesses, parties or other lawyers
(e.g., first names) or the court (e.g. "Judge" or "Sir") on the record is not appropriate.
- 7 c. Do not engage in distracting activity at counsel table or move about the courtroom
8 while opposing counsel is arguing or questioning witnesses, or in other ways cause distraction. Neither counsel nor client while at counsel table should indicate approval, disapproval or other reactions to any testimony or argument.
